Field Schools/Grant Sponsored Research

Department of Anthropology, Ball State University

The National Road Historical Archaeology Project: A Proposal for the Enhanced Provost Initiative Program – Immersion, Grant. BSU internal grant submitted spring 2007, $10,000 requested, $9,000 awarded. Excavations conducted at Huddleston Farmhouse, Cambridge City, Indiana. Artifacts analyzed by students after field school.

Lilly II Grant Recipient:

Lilly grant ($16,000) was used to pay student research assistants to conduct archaeological field and lab work at the Moore-Youse house in Muncie (summer 2004 to summer 2005). Grant was also used to conduct archival research for the Delaware County farmstead project (spring 2004).

Department of History and Anthropology, Augusta State University (ASU) and Savannah River Archaeological Research Program (SRARP), South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology, University of South Carolina

Field School Director:

May 12-June 15, 1999. Students in the ASU-SRARP field school participated in excavations at Galphin's Silver Bluff plantation, an 18th-century trading post and frontier plantation near Augusta, Georgia that was occupied between circa 1740 and 1790. The participants located a brick chimney base and postholes associated with an earthfast dwelling. The house, dating to the late 1730s, was surrounded by a defensive palisade. A thirty-foot segment of the palisade trench was excavated.

Department of Anthropology, University of Tennessee, Knoxville

Graduate Field Assistant: Blount Mansion, Summer 1996. Participants explored the landscape history of the site and excavated the remains of an outbuilding associated with the late 18th-century residence of William Blount, Governor of the Territory South of the Ohio River.

Graduate Field Assistant: Ramsey House, Summer 1995. Participants investigated the landscape history associated with Ramsey House, a 19th-century gentry residence in Knox County, Tennessee. Site investigations located the remains of several outbuildings associated with a stone Georgian dwelling.
